Eileen,

We would suggest adding this information into the status report. We want to explain what has been going on and show further progress, particularly by adding reference to the briefing process for making final decisions. We'd also like to suggest a new status report in 60 days. Thus -

Since EPA's last Status Report filed on November 8, 2018, and prior to December 28, 2018, EPA had been reviewing the comments it received on the August 27, 2018, notice of proposed rulemaking, in preparation to draft responses to the comments. On December 28, 2018, the appropriation account that was funding this work lapsed. January 28, 2019, was the first business day that funding was restored to EPA. EPA has resumed that work now that funding has been restored. EPA is also in the process of briefing management to reach decisions on issues raised in the comments.

EPA proposes filing an additional Status Report in 60 days.
